

LAFCO decision puts Dublin within Pleasanton's sphere

HAYWARD - The Local Agency Formation Commission established a sphere of influence for Pleasanton Thursday which includes Dublin and the Pleasanton Ridge.

In addition, LAFCO asked the staff to prepare a sphere of influence for the Valley Community Services District as regards sewer service.

In effect, the LAFCO action freezes VCSD's boundaries south of the county line with respect to fire water and recreation service.

Pleasanton City Manager Bill Edgar had proposed a "two-line concept" to the LAFCO board, which included an "urbanized boundary" similar to the LAFCO staff proposed boundary and an actual sphere line that included areas either already being provided with service by the city or which would have an impact on the city.

Among those areas were Sunol Ridge, Kilkare Woods, the Tassajara Valley, flatlands in the Sunol Valley in the area of the Vallecitos Nuclear Center and the proposed Apperson Guest Ranch.

The LAFCO board did not agree with Edgar's assessment that those areas should be within the sphere. As Commissioner Jack Malster put it to Edgar, "I think your chalk slipped going downhill."

Commissioner Joseph Bort emphatically objected to the inclusion of the Apperson ranch. "That's ridiculous," he said. "I am surprised you asked for it."

VCSD attorney Peggy McElligott told the commission she believed it would be "extremely ill-advised to create a sphere for Pleasanton which excludes any continued existence for VCSD. I suggest," she added, "you recognize the existence of VCSD and pursue a joint investigation with Contra Costa County to decide where VCSD should go."

McElligott also suggested a "coterminous" sphere be established for VCSD south of the county line and that, in effect, is what LAFCO did in asking the staff to prepare a sphere line for VCSD regarding sewer service.

McElligott admitted the "ultimate solution" for the VCSD problem is "city government." But, she added,

"this is not the way to accomplish it."

Joe Connery, executive director of the Contra Costa County LAFCO, said a San Ramon Valley incorporation move "would probably heat up again within a year." Such moves have been unsuccessful twice in the past, but, if passed, an incorporation would include the San Ramon area of VCSD, which is in Contra Costa County.

Commissioners admitted the major "knotty" problem in establishing spheres in the Amador Valley is the complicated sewer situation, where VCSD is a multi-county agency also serving half of Pleasanton.

Commissioner Don Murphy, who represents the Amador Valley, was absent from the meeting.

Four who could remember "the hardships, and the tremendous joy" of teaching at the turn-of-the-century Pleasanton Grammar School were included in that unique "class reunion" at Castlewood. Pictured from left (with their Grammar School teaching years indicated) are — Bertha Jessen Casterson, 1913-1915; Elsie Trimmingham Girard, 1918-1923; Gertrude Zwissler Arendt, 1919-1921; and Mattie Frost, 1918-1921. A photograph of the original two story, wood frame school — which burned down in 1909 — appears in the background.

'A very exclusive bunch'

They came back from yesterday

They came from a score of places near and far, drawn by the magnetism of a building that no longer exists, representing a time that, sadly, is also lost in the past. But not for them.

The Pleasanton Grammar School classes are, by their own admission, "a very exclusive bunch." It is reckoned that perhaps 200 of those who attended that school in the years from 1889 through 1915 are still living. On Thursday, 115 of them responded to the Second Annual Pleasanton Grammar School Reunion.

Castlewood's main ballroom was filled with the sparkle of their laughter, the sharpness of stories remembered, and — for many — friendships rekindled, after 60 or 70 years.

There were two "very special guests" at this most unique of school reunions. Dr. George Walton came from across the Bay to tell of

"grades one through nine" at the two-story school on the hill... and of that day, in 1895, when high school classes were made available at Livermore High School, or at Washington High in Centerville. "But our parents had to pay tuition, in either case," Livermore also offered the beginnings of a college in that same year, "but folded in 1900."

It was left to a very gracious Pleasanton lady, however, to capture the hearts of the Castlewood luncheon gathering. "Miss Bertha Jessen" was honored for her years as teacher at the Grammar School — from 1913 through 1915. And some 15 members of her fourth grade class were present to join the tear-filled standing ovation given that lovely person.

Her husband, Alfred Casterson, was also among the turn-of-the-century "pupils" at the old school.

"She is remembered as a strict and able teacher, and also kind and sweet," recalled Arthur Mendonca, who again served as master of ceremonies for the two-hour program. He then presented Bertha Jessen Casterson with a lovely basket of ripe, red apples, "just like we always gave our favorite teacher."

Sharing the head table were those who attended the original Grammar School, destroyed by fire in 1909. John Busch (who enrolled in 1893), Martha Schmidt Studebaker, Prena Raboli Koopman, Mary Delucchi Spetti, John Schneider, along with Walton and Al Casterson were included in that group.

(Additional photos, and some further recollections on "the Grammar School Gang," will appear in Sunday's Times.)

'Put pressure on state'

citizen urges council

PLEASANTON - Don Savery chastised the city council Tuesday night for not putting more pressure on the state to get the West Las Positas interchange constructed.

Savery presented the council with a petition containing the signatures of 87 citizens who want that interchange built.

Savery referred to an agreement between the city and state signed May 10, 1971, which states the state will pay for the interchange and asked "why that agreement has never been implemented?"

Answering his own question, Savery said, "I think it is because the city has never pushed for it. There is now a four-mile wall dividing the city," he added.

Savery urged the council to make a push for the West Las Positas interchange at a State Highway Commission meeting scheduled for July 17. "Unless someone pushes at the local level," he said, "nothing will happen."

City Manager Bill Edgar replied, in Alameda County, cities do not make individual presentations to the highway commission, the county makes the presentations. The council, however, promised to look into the matter.

When council members met at the Pleasanton Redevelopment Agency prior to the council meeting, they unanimously moved to establish the West Las Positas interchange as the number one priority for funds raised by the PRA.

Councilwoman hits block in Stoneridge plans plea

LIVERMORE - Try as she may, Congress of Valley Agencies (COVA) Chairwoman Helen Tirsell hasn't been able to get the City of Pleasanton to budge.

Tirsell, who is a councilwoman in Livermore, has argued that Pleasanton should submit plans for the Stoneridge Regional Shopping Center to COVA for discussion on the basis the project is of valley-wide significance.

She wanted those plans to be discussed at the June 12 meeting, at which time Livermore will be presenting its municipal airport master plan and land use study.

In a letter sent to Pleasanton Mayor Ed Kinney and the council last week, Tirsell warned that if the city's "unilateral decision to withhold projects of this nature is imposed on COVA now or in the future, the Agency will never be able to serve as a Valley forum."

The Pleasanton city council reiterated its refusal at its meeting Tuesday night to submit shopping center plans to COVA. The basis for the decision is that the development is within Pleasanton's incorporated area and not under COVA jurisdiction.

Tirsell expressed disappointment at Pleasanton's refusal to participate in the COVA meeting "particularly because our (Livermore's) consultants will be there to answer questions."

In her letter to Pleasanton, Tirsell addressed herself to the concept of "land use."

"Perhaps it is the terminology 'land use' which is really the source of our problem. In the strictest sense of the word, land use decisions are planning decisions made by duly authorized agencies without regard for their effect upon other governmental bodies... It is time to broaden this interpretation so that all agencies may at least ask the questions that concern them.

"For those of us who make land use decisions, this sort of review will mean that we must at least have thought about the consequences of our planning decisions."

"I am certain other agencies are not as concerned with how the land is used (locations, egress, ingress, parking amenities and design) as they are concerned with the environmental, economic, and demographic effects of decisions."

"These are questions that we might rightfully expect them to ask."

COVA, which is composed of representatives from the Cities of Livermore and Pleasanton, the Valley Community Services District (VCSD) and Zone 7 of the Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, was rejuvenated from the Valley Planning Committee.

The June 12 meeting will be COVA's sixth.

Firemen's muster - cool time in old town?

PLEASANTON - The valley may be one of the hottest spots in the greater Bay Area but the thousands attending Saturday and Sunday's Firemen's Muster at the Fairgrounds are promised strictly a cool time.

And not just because there'll be streams and buckets of water flying every which way.

Muster is being moved to the tree-shaded and languid surroundings of the County Fairgrounds, with all events save Sunday morning's parade being scheduled near the lawn area.

Organized by the Pleasanton Fire Department, most of the competitive events will involve points toward the state standings for fire units.

A pancake breakfast will open the two-day hijinx Saturday at the Fairgrounds cafeteria and lasts from 7:30 to 11 a.m.

The Saturday schedule continues with the hilarious and guaranteed-to-get-ringsiders-wet bucket brigade competition at 10 a.m. Plenty of stands will be setup for spectators.

Remainder of the Saturday slate includes a motorized contest, featuring old fire engine and hose units, at 12:30 p.m., a barbecue in the area next to the Historical Society's museum at 4 and a dance from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Fairgrounds cafeteria.

A wine tasting hosted by Villa Armando and a cheese tasting by Standard Cheese will take place during the Saturday barbecue. Admission to the dance is $1.50 per person and $2.50 per couple.

A pancake breakfast will also leadoff Sunday's activities, from 7:30 a.m. to 10 at the Fairgrounds cafeteria. The parade follows at 10:30 a.m., starting at St. John and Main Streets, and proceeds down Main to Rose, along Rose to Pleasanton and thence to the Fairgrounds.

The hand pumper contest, another one that draws many entries from throughout Northern California, begins at 11:30 a.m. The latter will go to about 3 p.m. when the hose cart races are scheduled.

Among the fire and pumper units coming to town for the competition

Central Fire District, Merced, Kensington, Ceres Volunteers, Napa, Eastside Fire District, Stanford, Santa Clara, Woodside, Menlo Park, Valley of the Moon, Pacifica, Winters, Tuolumne-Calaveras Rangers and the popular St. Francis Hook and Ladder unit.

Fire Wives will have refreshment booths at the Fairgrounds. Spectators are invited to bring a picnic lunch each day and enjoy the festivities.

Muster events such as this will be held at Fairgrounds this weekend.

Salary decision due today

After delaying the inevitable several times, the Alameda County Board of Supervisors will be forced to deal with the question of salary for its 9,000 employees this afternoon at 2:30 in Oakland.

Today is the final day for adopting a salary ordinance (in essence signing a contract with the employees) for the 1975-76 fiscal year. The supervisors must adopt some kind of ordinance regardless of whether agreement has been reached with employee unions.

The first deadline for signing the ordinance was set at May 22 and it has been moved further and further back in the face of stalled negotiations. Though the unions will not release their salary requests, it is known that the issue is monetary and does not deal with other issues.

The county is offering all employees with salaries of less than $1,000 a month an 8 per cent raise and employees with salaries of greater than $1,000 a month a 6 per cent raise. Also, the county will raise the salaries of some individuals to match median salaries for similar jobs in other counties.

Also, a 25 per cent increase in the health plan, a 20 per cent enrichment of the retirement fund and a jump in the layoff compensation are in the county fringe benefit package, which already includes a dozen paid holidays, a 3 1/2 work week, a dental plan and other programs.

The unions have not revealed their requests but indications are that they are asking a 12.5 per cent raise to match the cost-of-living rise in the Bay Area. County officials counter by saying raises in the past 10 years have often exceeded the cost-of-living increase and thus that figure is no guide.

Three options are apparently open to county employees if no agreement is reached and the supervisors are forced to pass a salary ordinance that has not been settled on. The unions could:

- Strike immediately;
- Accept the county salary schedule;
- Or continue working while negotiations go on.

Another issue is that the county refuses to grant retroactive pay raises if a settlement is reached after the end of May. Unions would like any settlement to be retroactive.

A principal's assessment

School a social studies lesson

PLEASANTON — "The school itself will be a good social studies lesson for the kids who will attend here."

And in making that comment, Walnut Grove School principal Anthony Huff officially signaled the beginning of a three alternatives approach to education for K-5 youngsters in that school's attendance area.

Parents checked surveys sent home to them and the count shows that 200 first through fourth grade students will be part of the fundamentalist program (Alternative III), 200 kindergarten through fifth graders in the Open Education program and about 500 in the team teaching classes, the current educational method in vogue at the school.

Indicative of the reaction to the three - concepts - under one - roof approach is Huff's notation that he has received several applications from parents of students who have heretofore attended Valley Christian School in Dublin. The latter is a private school with fundamentalist methods.

Alternative I, or the district program, will have about 500 students in 17 classrooms.

Open Education, Alternative II, will have six classrooms, non-graded, with about 200 students. One group will be in a K-2 pod and a second in a 3-5 pod. Huff believes this concept, as it is planned for Walnut Grove, will be pretty well institutionalized.

The fundamentalist concept will also have 200 youngsters enrolled. This will include one full first grade class, half a regular second grade class, one-and-one-half third grade classes and two fourth grade classes.

Huff reiterated that this concept is contingent upon walls being erected. Still, he considers it as being "at minimum, a two-year program."

Each alternative will have teachers now on the faculty who are well-versed in the procedures of each method. Huff said he received about 400 filled-out responses from parents in the Walnut Grove attendance area.

Some of the responses, particularly from those who checked the fundamentalist program for their children, wondered why the school was allowing one concept or another...in addition to the one they checked.

Many lauded the efforts of Huff and his staff, who have been working on procedures for several months so that an orderly progression can be made starting in September.

Total school enrollment is 899, extremely large for a K-5 school.

Students learn to remember

Tina Barnes, the student body president at Fredericksen Elementary School in Dublin, led the assembled students in the Pledge of Allegiance at Memorial Day ceremonies yesterday. The colors were presented by Cub Scout Pack 908, the school band performed and a presentation was given on the history of Memorial Day. A similar ceremony will be held at Fallon School today at 11 a.m. as another generation is taught about men who died for America.

Sierra Club lawyer tells other side of I-580 suit

DUBLIN — An intrepid Sierra Club attorney ventured into the Valley yesterday to explain — and defend — the club's suit to halt the widening of I-580 through the Dublin Canyon.

Humorously fearing a "contract" had been put out on him by local businessmen, Charles Chalmers, an attorney in private practice who sometimes volunteers his services to the club, addressed the weekly luncheon of the San Ramon-Amador Valley Exchange Club.

His presentation, which was planned to spell out the conditions of the recently agreed upon out-of-court settlement between the club and state and federal officials, in the end turned to a discussion of the "constitutional rights" of the minority and the will of the majority.

"One single individual living in Livermore could have brought the suit," Chalmers said when asked what right the 150,000-member club had to halt the will of the majority of Valley residents.

Delivering what at times amounted to a dissertation on the concept of a pluralist, constitutional democracy, Chalmers told his predominantly businessmen audience the suit was initiated after lengthy communications between the state and the club over the Environmental Impact Report, and was not an eleventh-hour move to thwart the majority.

The Sierra Club, like any citizen, has the right to ask if the EIR is done and if it has been examined well enough, he said, noting federal law, as it applies to interstate projects, "requires (those) projects be certified consistent with the air quality control plan for the area."

The club felt the "certificate of consistency" was insufficient, and that the "growth inducing impact in the Valley" was not examined enough.

The state, he said, told the club "That's what we're going to do. Love it or leave it." Hence the suit.

"No court of law has the right to say, on environmental issues, what will be built or not," he added, noting a judgement in favor of the club says the procedures have not been complied with, not that the club is right and the project is bad.

"The Sierra Club did not go to court saying 'We don't like it. Stop it!'," he explained, but "demanded that the procedural stages — as required by law — be complied with."

A precedent was set several years ago when the club alleged it was "specially suited to represent the public interest in environmental issues," he said.

In denying their case the Supreme Court ruled the "specially suited" clause was insufficient and that the club had to show some members directly affected. "The effect does not have to be monetary... (it) could include scenic surroundings."

"POPPYCOCK" The state concluded from the EIR that the widening would not increase the deterioration of air quality, and perhaps would lower it since the increased traffic would be moving faster.

But the state also assumed "no growth" in the Valley, Chalmers argued, and that's poppycock... Builders are standing in the wings.

Other "no growth" restrictions — air quality controls and sewer expansion limits — would not have stopped growth, Chalmers felt, and hence the suit was neither "punitive" nor redundant.

"The club felt the legal requirements were not complied with, that's all."

The decision to file suit was made by the club's directors after they were contacted by Valley residents who requested a legal review of the issue. The local chapter went to the directors who reviewed the issue, communicated with the state then filed suit.

"Who is this minority of 150,000 that thwarts the majority?" he was asked.

The principle of majority rule is not the issue, he countered, but of the rights of all citizens to equal protection under the law.

"You might not need those rights now, when you're in the majority," he offered, "but you may some day." The Sierra Club was simply out to protect those rights, whether they supported the majority or the minority, he concluded. The widening originally called for eight lanes through Castro Valley, but the compromise allows six lanes east of Crow Canyon Road to the Foothill Road interchange.

LLL scientist's advice

Keep geothermal research in two areas

A Lawrence Livermore Laboratory scientist told a gathering of over 1,000 scientists from around the world Tuesday that research into the conversion of geothermal power to electricity should concentrate in two areas.

Speaking before the Second United Nations Symposium on the Development and Use of Geothermal Energy in San Francisco, LLL program leader Roy Austin said that the binary cycle and total flow methods of converting geothermal energy into electricity "are the only opportunities for advances in geothermal power generation."

Austin's speech was one of 17 keynote talks in the two-week symposium, which has drawn scientists from Africa, India, the Soviet Union, South America, Japan, Europe, and the United States. The title of his talk was "Prospects for Advances in Energy Conversion Technologies for Geothermal Energy Development."

Austin limited his discussion to the three primary ways of converting geothermal energy in the form of heated ground water and steam into electricity. Due to the scope of the subject and the limited time allotted for his talk, Austin dealt only with the specifics of transferring the energy and not with such outside problems as cost or site planning.

The Lab Program Leader first discussed the flashed steam system, which uses the steam produced by a geothermal well. This method is in use in several spots around the world, most notably in New Zealand, but it does not use the potential power of the heated water. Also, present applications make it difficult to use steam with a high percentage of dissolved solids.

Dissolved solids are a problem with all geothermal power. When water is heated in the ground by magma deep beneath the earth's surface, it also dissolves minerals from adjoining rocks. When the water comes to the surface, it brings those dissolved minerals with it.

The corrosion problems associated with those dissolved materials is one of the big stumbling blocks in developing efficient power generating systems.

Also, the higher the temperature of the water, the more dissolved solids there are. Unfortunately, the hotter the water, the more suited it is for power generation.

Overcoming that problem is one of the big hurdles to widespread use of geothermal power, but several concepts have been developed that minimize contact with the corrosive water.

One of those is the binary cycle, which runs the water through a heat exchanger. The heat of the water turns a hydrocarbon from a fluid to a vapor and then the vapor turns turbines to supply power.

It is called a binary cycle because the water vapor from the earth is also used to turn turbines.

Austin states that the most efficient method is the total flow concept, but that it is also the furthest away from reality.

Simply, the total flow concept says that the total output of the well — vapor and liquid — should be used to generate power through the same system. Unfortunately, a system that can use that energy has yet to be designed.

Austin described a total flow plant that would use the combined vapor and liquid to turn turbines, after which the heated fluid was used to make steam and turn more turbines.

He was particularly impressed with the axial flow impulse turbine because it used a great amount of the kinetic energy of the flow while limiting both contact with the water (which contains dissolved minerals) and mechanical complexity.

The purpose of the meeting was both to exchange information and advance the cause of geothermal energy throughout the world. Since the power source is pollution free, environmentalists are starting to champion geothermal energy more and more forcefully.

However, Austin cautioned in his speech "if geothermal energy is to become a significant contributor to the growing need for energy, the development rate must be greatly accelerated."

Design Board OKs commercial building plans

PLEASANTON — Ken Hart received unanimous approval from the Design Review Board Wednesday to construct a commercial service facility at 4716 Stanley Blvd.

The board called the special meeting Wednesday afternoon to review Hart's architectural plans because he was unable to attend the regular May 14 meeting.

Hart will construct six buildings on the 9.25-acre parcel and they will contain 62,000-square foot modules. Among the 12 conditions attached to the approval was a stipulation that two Heritage trees in the driveway of the property be moved if possible rather than just cut down.

Vocational fair runoffs at Dublin

DUBLIN — A special feature of the County Fair each year is the Vocational Olympics, where students compete in the skill areas they've been taught.

On Saturday, Dublin High School's business department will host the runoffs among students from the southern portion of the county. Each high school is entitled to send one student for each of the following areas: typing for speed and accuracy, production typing, shorthand, and printing calculator.

The two winners in each category will then compete at the county level.

FOR THE FIRST TIME SCIENTISTS HAVE SUCCEEDED IN ENRICHING VISIBLE AMOUNTS OF URANIUM

After enrichment, the material is suitable for fuel in nuclear power plants.

Lab scientists find formula for enriching nuclear fuel

Lawrence Livermore Laboratory scientists have taken a giant step forward in the preparation of fuel for nuclear power plants, it was announced today.

Sam Tuccio and his three-man team have succeeded in "enriching" uranium fuel for nuclear reactors using laser technology in quantities large enough to be seen.

Laser enrichment had been successful before, but the amounts of enriched fuel had always been invisible to the naked eye and also useless in terms of supplying fuel for nuclear plants.

Presently, enrichment is accomplished using expensive and time-consuming gas diffusion and gas centrifuge techniques.

The reason that enrichment is necessary is that uranium ore has two common isotopes. (An element is defined by the number of protons in its nucleus; however, all elements have atoms with differing number of neutrons in the nucleus, which affects the stability of that particular atom. Each variation in the number of neutrons is called an isotope.) The most common isotope is uranium-238, which is not quite rich enough to power nuclear plants. The isotope uranium-235, however, if present in sufficient quantities, can enrich uranium-238 so that it can be used.

Scientists have discovered that fuel must contain 3 per cent uranium-235 to be effective; in nature, uranium-235 is present only at about a 0.7 per cent level.

Therefore, developing a cheap and efficient method of enriching uranium fuel has been a goal of researchers for the past few years and Lab scientists have been using lasers as a prime tool.

A laser is a beam of light at a certain very specific and easily controlled frequency. Since one of the differences between uranium-235 and uranium-238 is the frequency at which electrons absorb light, Lab researchers felt that using a laser that was tuned to the rarer uranium-235 might be a way of separating the two otherwise identical metals.

Last year, LLL reported separating uranium-235 in microscopic quantities by exciting the electrons in uranium-235 enough so that those atoms would deflect slightly toward a positively charged plate. The method worked but was not efficient enough for commercial purposes.

However, since then, Tuccio and his team — Richard Foley, James Dublin and Oscar Krikorian — have added another laser. Now, the uranium-235 electrons are excited by a laser to a certain level of energy that allows them to absorb more energy from a second, krypton laser. The energy from the second laser strips the electron from the atom entirely and gives it a positive charge.

Meanwhile, uranium-238 atoms are undisturbed by the lasers since their electrons cannot absorb energy at those specific frequencies. They retain a neutral electric charge and thus are not drawn to a negatively-charged collection plate as the uranium-235 atoms are.

The new experiment demonstrated more than a 10-million-fold increase in enriched uranium production rate and produced four thousandths of a gram of 3 per cent enriched uranium in about two hours.

Tuccio, however, cautioned "Our intent is not large-scale production but careful investigation of the many laser enrichment concepts that appear theoretically possible. This technology is in its infancy and it would be very premature to settle on one laser method as being the only way to go."

Tuccio reported his results to the Conference on Laser Engineering and Applications last night in Washington, D.C. Last year, the Lab budget for isotope separation research was $4.4 million, but that figure will be boosted to $6.4 million in the coming fiscal year.

Ron Hyde takes EPA to task for wastewater plant failure

Trustees of the Bay Area Sewage Services Agency took the Environmental Protection Agency to task last week for failing to administer the Federal Water Pollution Control Act to fulfill national commitments to build new wastewater treatment plants. BASSA Trustee Ron Hyde of Dublin forwarded a resolution which calls for EPA Administrator Russell Train "to take forthwith action to enable water quality management programs in the Bay Area to proceed without further undue delays in grant funding processing and to avoid further complications from unneeded involvements with environmental concerns outside of the Clean Water Program."

BASSA's action noted that Clean Water Grant Programs had received overwhelming support from Congress and the people of California, and that local agencies throughout the Bay Area had been pursuing water quality management planning in a spirit of urgency to accomplish the stated objectives.

The resolution also states, "Despite widespread public support and great economic need for construction of essential public works, the EPA had displayed little willingness to pursue or expedite early construction of needed facilities, and had even complicated the Clean Water Program by relating it to other environmental concerns for which immediate or medium range solutions are not available or are impossible to achieve, thus delaying ongoing practical approaches to achieving clean water objectives."

The agency staff was directed to forward copies of the BASSA action to the EPA administrator, the Bay Area Congressional delegation and to national groups and associations acting in the interest of public agencies seeking improved water quality.

City government at crisis corners

Is municipal government dead?

That question is being asked today throughout the state's higher political levels. The answer will come from places like Dublin, Pleasanton and Livermore, and from people who will bear the brunt of this "new look in local government."

The evidence in this valley is that we are far from getting the best information. We haven't even begun to ask the right questions.

When the Livermore leadership was confronted with the prospect of extensive development throughout the Las Positas area, that city council responded with all the courage of an 1875 town board trustees: "We can't handle what we already have. Why add more?" was the essence of Livermore's official reply. That is just the kind of provincial cop-out the Regional Boosters in Sacramento like to hear.

When the Alameda County Local Agency Formation Commission — acting in compliance with state law — set out to recommend a "sphere of influence for the Upper Amador Valley," the local response seems a repeat of that Las Positas debacle, only in reverse. Instead of coming up with any meaningful alternatives, we bounced back with a lot of stupid questions — most of them in defence of the "rural status quo."

It must be understood that there is little in those LAFCO reports, and certainly not in the local responses, to insist that merger of Pleasanton and Dublin into one municipal entity is desirable, profitable, or even unavoidable. Fortunately, the final decision on any such blending of two substantial urban areas must come from the voters within those communities — and they are a long way from approaching such a determination.

But that does not suggest the LAFCO proposal is totally without merit. Nor does it mean we are free to remain just as we are, for all time.

LAFCO is the humble forerunner of "Total Regionalism." To the extent that we are able to respond to our own regional challenge, we might be able to forestall that larger takeover.

Should Dublin and Pleasanton form

the nucleus for a larger "Amador Valley City"? Frankly, we don't know. But the question deserves something more intelligent than the responses provided to date. — "Interstate 580 presents a permanent barrier that divides those two communities." That is not an acceptable answer for those who can list scores of California communities divided by one or more freeways — including Dublin and Pleasanton, which have I-680 slicing through from north to south.

The further arguments filed by the Valley Community Services District are also weak — "the LAFCO study fails to include San Ramon" ... "Cities can't cross county lines the way special service districts can" ... "LAFCO fails to acknowledge VCSD as a viable governmental entity, ready and willing to expand."

Even if an Alameda County agency were empowered (or invited) to plan for an inhabited portion of an adjacent county, what makes the VCSD people think that San Ramon wants any part of an Alameda County attachment? And why does VCSD argue that a city of Pleasanton and Dublin cannot possibly expand across that county line — even to extend basic services — where a new municipality of Dublin-San Ramon is going to readily erase that barrier?

The truth, of course, is that the VCSD board of directors speak for what they represent — a special services district. There is nothing wrong with that, as long as the people understand this VCSD thrust. They want to preserve what they have, where they are. The same might be said for by many self-satisfied Pleasantonites. Sunol feels that way.

But that is not the question LAFCO is now submitting to the entire Amador Valley. And it is not the answer powerful state forces will be expecting when they soon descend on us with a mandate for "local regionalism." If we want to be ready for that larger onslaught, we would do well to understand this smaller challenge. But we will not accomplish either goal by asking stupid questions, or making childish defense of our own political enclave, no matter what.

precious part of this heritage is freedom of worship. We regret that much of America interprets this as freedom of worship. We regret that much of America interprets this as freedom NOT to worship, but we recognize their right to do so and will always defend that right.

What disturbs us is the increasing attempt to pull citizens apart by scheduling community events for a Sunday morning hour on school premises, on the athletic fields and now even in our civic life.

Our forefathers ruled that Sunday was to be a day of rest. They were rather rigid about it. None of us want a return to those days. What the undersigned plead for is an example to the youth of our day, an atmosphere of respect for the old-fashioned idea of assembling in God's house to greet our risen Saviour with song and prayer and meditation. We pray that you folks will take this into consideration the next time you arrange a parade to be enjoyed by all of us.

Sincerely
Marc Kluender

with the bald head spraying paint on the fender of a pickup truck parked in the drive.

"What've you got there," he asked, pleasantly, and I told him about the stuck bolt.

"Let me have it," he said. "We'll try something." Within the dusty gloom of the shop I watched him put the tool in a vice, select a hammer and a small nail punch and go to work before my attention was drawn to the equipment.

The walls were lined with the tools of a machinist, once familiar to me but long since a part of my memory and a current mystery.

Calipers, micrometers, and a variety of wrenches, most of them long unused, hung from the walls and littered benches. A pair of lathes, their chucks disconnected and lying idle on the rails, dominated the room, big, precision machines which had seen busier days, more active months and years, dominated the room.

"You've got some pretty big lathes here," I observed, not idly but because I was honestly impressed as a former member of Local 69 International Association of Machinists.

"Got a bigger one in the back room," he muttered. "There's a 20 incher back there."

I wandered through the door to the back room and the 20 inch lathe loomed at the side of the wall, jaws of its massive chuck large enough to take a 12 inch shaft.

That back room amazed me. A huge radial drill dominated one side of the room, standing next to a planer which was almost as large, both of them directly across from a small shaper. The squat, dusty building under Assemblyman Mori...

A legislator's vote

One of the best ways of determining if your elected officials are giving you the representation you want is by studying their voting records.

A voting record reads like a political diary, revealing how a legislator thinks on various issues, whether he heeds the desires of his constituency, tends to be independent, moderate, leans toward liberal or conservative points of view.

A legislator is subjected to many pressures between the time a bill is introduced, goes through committees and comes to the floor for final vote. On controversial issues, he is apt to receive hundreds of letters, telegrams and phone calls from constituents asking him to vote this way or that. Lobbyists drop by in friendly efforts to influence his decision. Fellow legislators seek his support.

Following are my votes on some bills I consider important to the 15th Assembly District and the State:

Housing — Establishes a State housing finance agency and authorizes $950 million in bonds for low-interest loans to finance housing construction. My vote: Aye. Passed 67-11, sent to the Senate. This bill will help the sagging building industry and provide more housing for low and middle-income persons.

Drugs — Permits pharmacists to substitute less expensive generic drugs for equivalent prescribed brand name drugs. My vote: Aye. Passed 67-10, sent to the Senate.

Marijuana — Reduces penalties for possession and uses of marijuana. I voted: No. Failed 37-36. (forty-one "Aye" votes were needed for passage). I opposed this bill for several reasons. For one, voters of the 15th Assembly District expressed overwhelming opposition to easing penalties in a 1972 ballot measure. Also, I feel there is not yet conclusive evidence that marijuana is not harmful to health. I might support a bill that would lower the penalty from felony to misdemeanor for the occasional user, provided that tough penalties are kept for drug dealers.

Unemployment — Extends unemployment insurance benefits to farm workers. Vote: Aye. Passed 58-18, sent to the Senate.

Smoking — Permits high schools and community colleges to set aside designated areas on campuses for students who smoke. I voted: Aye. Passed 41-35, sent to the Senate. Currently, smoking is prohibited on campuses, and as a result, young smokers sneak cigarettes in restrooms, often causing discomfort to non-smokers and a time-consuming policing problem for teachers. Students caught are subject to suspension, but they are often the ones who need the most help academically.

Although I am a non-smoker, I voted "Aye" because: (1) prohibition is not going to stop young people from smoking; (2) with the challenge of "beating the establishment" diminished, young smokers are more apt to use reason instead of bowing to peer pressure; (3) designating smoking areas will protect the rights of others who are bothered by smoke in restrooms and other non-smoking areas.

Regional Government — Creates a regional planning agency for Bay Area counties, including Alameda. Vote: Aye. Passed 41-28, sent to the Senate. While I was an elected city official, I saw the problems caused by having numerous single-purpose agencies performing similar municipal functions. An umbrella agency would be able to coordinate all of the municipal functions which have regional significance. If such an agency is not created, I fear that the federal and state governments will assume control over local and regional planning without the benefit of local input. My main reservation with the bill is its provision for a super-mayor with veto power. I am hoping this concept will be amended out in the Senate. Members of the agency would be both appointed and elected from local jurisdictions.

These are a few of the many votes I have cast since taking office. If you have questions about these or other matters that come before the Legislature, please contact me or my district office staff in Hayward or Pleasanton.

FOCUS/ Foothill bus route? Bridging 680 'wall'

The east-west access question in Pleasanton could be in part resolved if AC Transit, the city and residents of the area west of Highway 680 were amenable to a Foothill Road route.

While we advance this as a stop-gap measure, it nevertheless could aid the transit problem of untold numbers who have jobs in Hayward, Dublin and the metropolitan bay area. It could also be of great help to those persons with business and shopping chores in downtown Pleasanton, Dublin and Livermore.

When the city and AC Transit initially discussed routes through Pleasanton, Foothill Road as a prime or secondary artery into and out of Pleasanton was considered but was a distant second to the eventual route...Hopyard, Valley, Santa Rita and Stanley.

While any routing of buses along Foothill, whether on an hourly or two-or-three-times-a-day basis would not solve the student commute (to Foothill) problem, it could provide a motorized "overpass" over the 680 "wall."

It would be this writer's suggestion that residents west of 680 who would benefit by bus service along Foothill Road get together and petition AC for same or contact council members asking for an additional route along the "main street of Pleasanton West."

We make this suggestion in view of the council's action to put a local feeder bus line proposal on the back burner. Livermore also has plans for such a line but it has become rather obvious that if a network of residential lines is to evolve, they must be worked up jointly.

Until that day arrives, and it could be years down the road, we must have a system that will serve ALL major population and business areas in the valley. In discussing bus routes, the city and AC must be cognizant not only of youth and senior citizens, but housewives, businessmen and even the inveterate driver...the ones who won't go anywhere without a car unless they're convinced the public transportation will get them to the same place in almost the same amount of time.

In short, those supporting new routes or providing them (AC-BART) must "sell" them. If only a handful of residents west of 680 believe a bus route will be of great assistance to them, then it is hardly worth the effort. But we will never know unless someone starts the cry. Any such system should also link Ston-bridge, Highland Oaks and Muirwood area residents with Dublin, downtown Pleasanton and Livermore, with buses coming off Foothill at Bernal. It would seem feasible if AC would provide two early morning outbound schedules via Foothill to Dublin and Hayward BART, two mid-day going in each direction, and two inbound from Hayward or Bay Fair (to Dublin-Foothill-Pleasanton and Livermore) in the evening.

While on the subject of bus routes and stops, we wonder if AC, the county and/or Livermore or Pleasanton have considered a stop off of Stanley Boulevard at Shadow Cliffs Regional Park. The park is jammed with hundreds of people almost daily during the summer months. It is a nice place for a family to spend a part of the day...but an impossibility if they don't have a car or bicycle.

round the town

When I get around to authoring my first, full-length novel, it shall be on travel. Not the usual "Wish you were here," kind of thing, mind you. I have something more useful in mind.

"How to pack?" ... "When to leave?" ... "Who'll keep the dog?" Problems we all face in planning the family vacation. Unfortunately, most of us don't face the problems until we are well on the road.

"I hate to tell you this, an hour after we've left home, but I'm almost certain I failed to pack the ..." It is a sure-fire way of sending the vacation off on a sour note. Or at least give the old man's stomach the awful rumbles.

"See if we have any Digel in the glove compartment," is the usual request. And, as usual, we don't. Rumble on, old fella.

Packing in our house for the big journey — or even the teensy, weensy ones — comes in three parts: 1. One full week of talking about "all the things I won't need, and there's certainly no sense in taking everything we own." 2. One full hour of actually assembling the material, jamming same into suitcases, in an eleventh-hour rush guaranteed to lead to — 3. The big lament, one day later, when you are on the vacation scene, but lacking those items essential to the preservation of female hygiene and happiness.

Three years in the navy taught me that life's necessities could always be stuffed into one duffle bag. What you couldn't pack, you didn't take. Somehow, the Allied Forces managed to cross three continents and save all of humanity, on just such a travel plan. It does now not, however, work for a woman going on a trip.

"Will you want the wardrobe case this time," I ask, helpfully. "Don't be smart," she says, "you know we're only going to Chico overnight." We get by with one suitcase, plus the something called "the cosmetics case." There's the rub.

"Must you pack all these pills every time we go anywhere?" ... the tops have all come off the containers, and the reds and the whites and those big purple things are all mixed up on the bottom of the case." It has always been her one great failing ... unable to master the twist-on, twist-off tops on those new pill bottles.

"It's designed as a safety feature," I remind her. "Supposed to be so's just small children can't work the tops. I don't think the pill people meant to frustrate wives and mothers." She reminds me of her other virtues, and we proceed with the vacation.

There will be a chapter, in my new book, just for "The Pitfalls of Packing for Young People." Not the real small ones. They're a cinch, as you will discover when your brood approaches the terrible teens. Girl teenagers, most particularly.

"Somebody has been using my safety razor again ... the blade is dull, and there's a bunch of strange hair still wrapped around the guide." It is a speech I make every now and then. Particularly when we are on vacation. Sharing a cabin, or a tent. With no drug store in sight. "She forgot to pack her own razor," I am informed, "it's a small thing ... don't make an issue."

Easily said, if it's not your face that's getting a second hand leg-pruning job. I have raised three girls and a wife, but I am still not reconciled to women shaving themselves, particularly when they use my razor. Now they use hot wax, but only after most of the femmes have fled the nest.

All but one. She got a summer job at Yosemite. Checked out of Chico State Thursday night, took off for Yosemite Valley at the crack dawn on Friday. "She should have lined up a job three months ago ... I kept telling her, didn't I?" But nobody ever listens to fathers, anymore. I figure the disappointment will do her good ... drive all the way to Yosemite, run around begging for a job, then home in a few days, defeated, remorseful. I'll try to avoid saying, "I told you so!"

She called us just before noon, on Friday, collect. "I got this super job ... from the very first place I checked. The man said it was a good thing I came in when I did ... they were looking for someone that very minute."

How can you teach them a lesson, when even the stupid depression won't co-operate? The job starts like right away, so there's no time to return home.

"I'll need a few things ... I'll mail a list," she announces. The list arrives. It is an inventory of everything she has ever owned, including plants and bed spread.

"Why is it a girl smart enough to land a job on one hour's notice can't learn to get by for three months on something less than two trunkloads of clothing and junk?" I demand. But to no end.

"She wants her 'Tennis America' T-shirt, racquet and shoes," she says from inside the closet, "and I suppose we should take along her cutoffs and hiking boots too." I am about to say something brilliant, like "is this a job or a fulltime paid vacation?", but think better of it.

"She also wants her Lady Schick ... the yellow one." I am informed. I figure if the kid and I can get by without having to share a razor, then it might be a happy summer, after all.

"If we're driving up there, be sure to take along some Digel," I remind her. No sense in taking chances.

— by John Edmands

"She is sick all right," he replied, the sparkle gone from his voice. "I don't know how much longer I'll have her."

I remembered those long walks through the corridors of Washington hospital in 1971 and the words I had written.

Have joined a select fraternity lately. We wander alone through the crowds in halls of hospitals recognizing each other as we pass with a nod of the head and perhaps a murmured word of sympathy and encouragement. It is a very exclusive fraternity and one which any one of us would gladly leave.

He fitted a nut to the end of the bolt and handed me the little tool.

"There, that'll lock it," he said. "It's as good as new now. Probably better."

"What's the damage?" I inquired.

He grinned, a little sheepishly. I thought.

"That'll be seventy-five cents," he said. "A minimum charge."

"Seventy-five cents?" I replied. "Most machine shops charge ten times that for walking past the door."

"No sense in being a hog," he told me. "I can only make $2,400 a year. Uncle Sam would take the rest."

I thanked him and walked out of the twilight gloom of the machine shop into the bright May sunlight and wondering if, when his tragedy comes and passes he will recover and live as happily as I.

God willing, it may never come.

Letter to the editor

Sunday parades

To the Pleasanton Fire Department:

We read in The Pleasanton Times the announcement regarding the Annual Fireman's Muster being held here in Pleasanton on May 31 and June 1, and we know this will be the usual outstanding event the community looks forward to each year.

We are saddened however by the news that the parade of fire relics will begin on Sunday morning at 10:30 a.m. We happen to be Christians and we love Jesus Christ. We also are accustomed to worshipping our Lord Jesus on Sunday mornings. Therefore we wonder why you would seek to divide the interests and loyalty of the people of Pleasanton by beginning this parade at a time when most of Christian Protestant America is at worship. You force us either to disobey our conscience or to be separated from an event that should rightfully be a part of all of us and not just of those who are indifferent to public worship.

As we enter America's Bicentennial celebration we citizens of this grand nation want to be remembered our heritage, a heritage purchased at bloody cost by our forebears but handed to us on a platter, as it were. One

The building squats on a side street in a valley town, green or perhaps grey paint peeling under its layer of dust, the windows barely translucent, bare light bulbs gleaming dimly over the cluttered interior.

A black and white sign said simply, "Machine shop" and a smaller one on the door warned potential customers the working hours were from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

I had passed the shop many times before and wondered about the lack of activity, not being aware of the sign regarding hours which was tucked away and out of sight down the drive.

Tuesday I became aware of the odd hours when I went there with my garden tool the bolt which had wedged itself so tight I could not move it with an Allen wrench. Wednesday I was careful to arrive there during working hours and it was then I found the square, powerful man

We could save a lot of energy at the bridge table if players would just think about the right things instead of the wrong ones.

South won the heart lead in dummy and promptly lost a spade finesse. West led a second heart. South won, played dummy's jack of spades and then thought about the club suit. How could he play it to avoid the loss of two tricks?

The answer is that with clubs breaking 4-3 and the honors split there was no way for South to play clubs and avoid letting the defense score two club tricks against him. Actually South led dummy's jack. East covered with the king and West

Richmond rivals to dethrone SoCal?

The City of Richmond, northern California's answer to the possibility of southern domination at this year's state meet, sends its intra-urban spike war to Diablo Valley College for the running of the North Coast Section High School Track Championships today and tomorrow.

The heavies of the piece are Harry Ellis' Dedy Cooper and J.F. Kennedy's Robert Gaines, who will renew a long-standing rivalry in the 120-yard high hurdles as well as putting in relay appearances.

Both have run 13.5 for the highs. Cooper has done it twice, defeating Gaines in the Kennedy Relays and last week's Bay Division meet.

With Cooper running the anchor leg for the first time this year, Ellis' 440 relay team dashed to the state's second fastest clocking, 42.0, for first place in the division meet. Aptly, the low mark belongs to JFK, with Gaines running in second position.

Cooper will also go in the 330 low hurdles and anchor Ellis' mile relay, which last week burned a state best 3:17.8 thanks to Dedy's 46.8 final 440.

Pittsburg's Frank Unpingco, the Valley Division champion at the 330 lows, ran 37.8 two weeks ago and should give Cooper a push. But Bart Williams of Vallejo has the fastest time among NCS qualifiers, a 37.0 winner at last week's Inland Empire meet. Williams is also favored in the 440, having run 48.7.

East Bay Athletic League quartermilers Dan King and Matt Priewe, of Granada and San Ramon, stand a chance of dipping beneath 50 seconds for the first time. King held off Priewe to win the Valley Division 440 last week, 50.7 to 51.0.

Priewe anchors San Ramon's latest bid for a lane at the state meet, a mile relay unit which has a season's best of 3:26.3. The Wolf quartet also includes Fritz Venker, Paul Swenson and Tim O'Donnell, and coach Dan Stevens feels the group has a good chance of making it to San Diego for the June 6-7 championships.

"We don't really know how fast Fritz can run a quarter," says Stevens. "He keeps improving so rapidly."

"And we've been working on our handoffs, which haven't been that sharp lately. We should be ready to go under 3:25, and that will put us in the running for a state berth."

San Ramon's "guarantee" of representation at the state meet is internationalist Roy Kissin, an easy winner in the Valley Division two mile (9:18.8) and EBAL (9:03.6 seasonal best).

Finals in girls' events will also be held Saturday, as qualifying was held last week in the various divisions. This year, girls will enjoy equal representation in state meet qualifying, as the NCS meet sends four of each sex per event to San Diego. That's an increase of three in the girls' events.

Locally, Livermore sprinter-jumper Paula Ng is still testing a recently injured ankle, but the freshman whiz qualified easily last week and should be a contender in the short dashes.

Granada's sprint relay teams, anchored by Diana Stohr, are also entered, the result of top qualifying times in last week's Valley trials.

Slugger Perry tops all-EBAL

Wayne Perry, who led the EBAL in hitting with a .393 average this past season, was selected to the all-EBAL team released this morning by league coaches.

Perry, who guided Livermore High to the league pennant, was chosen as an infielder along with San Ramon's Carl Speck and Ed Flanagan.

Two other Cowboys joined Perry on the first team, pitcher Keith Richardson, and outfielder Greg Edwards.

Monte Vista, which tied San Ramon for second place in the EBAL, placed pitcher Chris Dudley on the all-league squad. San Ramon also provided catcher Paul Miller.

Granada, which wound up in fourth place, had three first team selections, outfielders Ken Stayton and Dave O'Brian, and utility man Steve Stone.

Perry, who had 11 base hits in 28 at bats during the league season, was a second team selection a year ago. His hitting in the final month of the league campaign helped Livermore overtake Monte Vista in the hectic pennant race. Prior to that time the Cowboys' senior shortstop had dipped below the .300 mark.

Richardson, who pitched nearly every game for Livermore after the halfway point in the season, wound up with a 6-2 record. He struck out 65 in 56 innings of work. Dudley was 5-1 for Monte Vista.

Speck is the best hitter on the all-EBAL squad after Perry, with a .300 average.

O'Brian batted .290, and McCuaig, .282. McCuaig's single the final day of the season defeated Monte Vista, 1-0, and gave Livermore the championship.

The second team selected by EBAL coaches includes Mark Larson of Amador Valley, and Granada's Bob Stoddard as pitchers.

Tim Duke of Granada, who was one of three men to reach the .300 mark at 308, is the first baseman.

Infielders include Mark Silva, Monte Vista, Steve Vaughn, Amador, and Dave Spencer of Granada.

Brett Boldrini, Amador, San Ramon's Greg Bishop and Rich Palmer of Livermore are the outfielders.

John Prieto, Dublin, is the utility player.

Dublin Valley

Jeff Candella drove in the winning run in the bottom of the sixth inning Wednesday night as Frank's Exxon defeated Romley's Market, 6-5, in Dublin Valley major league baseball.

Candella slapped a single and double for the Tigers, and had two runs batted in.

Tiger pitcher Rich Fahey stopped Romley's on just three base hits. He struck out 11.

Losing pitcher Phil Hampton of Romley's also struck out 11. Teammate Steve Martin doubled and drove in two runs.

Televue captured a 20-6 minor league win from Heritage Investment, as Jeff McKeon slapped out three hits and drove in four runs. Todd Eggen had two RBI's.

Drug City of the training league defeated Dublin Schwinn, 35-9. Billy Page played excellent defense, as did Joey Martinez. Page and Chris Weeks each had five hits.

Granada

Red Wing Shoes continued to dominate the Granada major leagues Wednesday, crushing Granada Shopping Center, 15-0.

Jack Trudeau and Jeff Baker fired a three-hitter at the Shoppers. Trudeau and Bobby Jackson each drove in four runs, and both had doubles, along with John Petlansky.

VFW slipped by Columbus Realty, 9-7, with Matt Robinson and Kevin Lewis driving in two runs apiece. Steve Johnson had two RBI's for Columbus.

Serv Pro belted Granada Pharmacy, 14-10, on the hitting of John Seichter and Rod Whitlatch. Fred Stayton hit a three-run homer for Granada.

Groth Bros. and Corrine's tied, 2-2. Pat Morgan and Scott Buys pitched for Groth, Craig Taylor and Sean McIntoch for Corrine's. McIntoch had three hits.

Livermore

Eric Wayne threw a four-hitter at Value Giant Wednesday night, carrying J.F. Shea to a 6-1 Livermore Babe Ruth baseball victory.

The winners struck for five runs in the second inning to put the game out of reach.

Catcher Steve Stoddard had two singles for Shea, and drove in one of the runs.

Lions, 4-3

The three-hit pitching of John Costello earned Lions Club a 4-3 win over R&S Dray in Pleasanton Babe Ruth baseball.

He allowed one fifth-inning run, and two more in the seventh.

Scott Vaughns tripled twice for the Lions. Pat Driver had two singles. Both men drove in a run.

The Cardinals beat the Mets, 6-4, on the six-hit pitching of Guy Houston. Brett Hall had three of the hits off Houston, and drove in three runs.

Behind the pitching of Mike Wade and the excellent defensive play of the entire squad, the Televue Twins aced the Pleasanton Disposal Tigers, 13-8, in Pleasanton Babe Ruth baseball Thursday.

Kevin Sawyer and Brian Healy each drove in two runs with an extra base hit for the losers. The Tigers' Steve Sinden also slammed a two-bagger.

On sports

You'll see the rest of basketball

Mike Zampa

One of the quickly forgotten fiascos of 1975 was the Western Basketball Association, which purported to be professional sport, but looked more like a melodrama. The sprinkling of spectators who attended weekly WBA sessions usually walked out fretting over unsolved mysteries.

Would the players receive their $25 nightly stipend? Would enough fans show up next week to meet the payroll? Would enough players turn out to warrant a payroll. And finally, would the team owners last the season against rising rent and withering crowds, or would they skip out for something profitable like earth-worm ranching.

Though five of the six teams who launched the WBA's first fully professional basketball campaign survived, they came out looking like Spencer Tracy in "Old Man and the Sea," haggard and bloody, and reluctant to take another boat ride.

You may have forgotten, or perhaps never had the Tri-Valley Warriors won the WBA title from the San Jose Winchester.

The title series was played in perfect anonymity, before only the eyes of some high school janitors in San Jose and Pleasanton.

The outcome didn't even get reported until days after the series climaxed.

No one turned out to meet the Warriors as their team station wagon pulled back in with the championship trophy. They didn't get invited to chamber of commerce luncheons or victory celebrations at the County Fairgrounds.

Only 25 folks showed up for the one championship game played at Amador Valley High School. All of those were freebies.

The title series was chopped down from five games to three, to avoid the extra two night's rent. The feeling in the WBA was get it over with and forget it.

Only the psychotic would entertain thoughts of starting the league up again next season.

put that could just happen, with a big boost from the Golden State Warriors who conveniently won the National Basketball Association championship last Sunday.

If you haven't heard the story before, Golden State center George Johnson is a WBA graduate. A refugee of the Martinez Muirs. He was drafted by the Chicago Bulls out of Dillard College, cut and wound up at Martinez.

The Muirs are the dregs of the WBA. They have a good coach, Dale Hall, who has handled "name" players. But they draw no fans and win few games. As a crowning slap someone burned down their gym at Alhambra High this past season, perhaps a hint they shouldn't come back.

Johnson stuck it out in Martinez until Golden State beckoned him back. You probably watched on television or at the Cow Palace last week as big George played an important role in the Warriors' championship. His biggest supporters undoubtedly came from that lunatic fringe in the WBA planning to start up operations again next winter.

Those folks are right now printing up posters of Johnson in a Martinez uniform. The caption will say something like "The WBA can do this for you."

The success of Johnson and Golden State is timely for the WBA, because its future will be decided soon in San Francisco. NBA owners are staging their season-ending convention there, and one of the agenda items will be the Western Association.

It has requested minor league status with the big league, along with a handful of other splinter associations from the midwest and east. The plan calls for subsidies from the NBA in terms of cash and players. The WBA wants to affiliate with an NBA club, (first choice Golden State) and take its bottom three or four roster men.

Potentially good players are lost to the NBA each season because the 12-man rosters leave little room for undeveloped talent. The WBA wants to become a proving ground for that talent. of the people Golden State drafted last Thursday could be saved for future use if they could be left in the care of a minor league outfit.

Red Auerbach, general manager of the Boston Celtics, is said to favor the minor league concept. Warrior G.M. Dick Vertlieb has voiced his approval too. With that to chew on, plus the Warrior championship banner flying over the Bay Area, the NBA's bosses may be influenced to pick up the tab for a minor league.

After they witnessed Golden State's fairytale rise with Rick Barry and a bunch of obscurities, the owners could be anxious to dig up their own George Johnsons.

There are two stumbling blocks to the l, however minor league proposa One is money. Most minor league operations are about as solid as a rock of whipped cream. It would require infusions in great quantity to restoke the WBA for instance.

The other negative aspect is the NBA Players' Association. It will balk at the proposal as it now stands, because the roster of a big league team would be pared down to 10 players. The remaining two bodies would be banished to the hinterlands.

That would be quite a step down for a fellow like Steve Bracey, Golden State's 12th man. Bracey was a run-and-gun backcourt man for the Atlanta Hawks, who was traded over but didn't fit the Warrior style of feeding Barry and KEITH Wilkes.

He played a great deal prior to arriving in the Bay Area, then became a fixture on the bench.

Under the WBA proposal, Bracey might languish in Pleasanton or Stockton next season while his teammates play Madison Square Garden.

The Players Association won't accept that predicament graciously.

The owners may balk at creating unrest at a time when it is a byword of pro sports.

But then George Johnson could appear with his championship ring to point out; "Look what it did for me."

Sox benefit

John Bonham drove in four runs, and Zane Thomas crashed a home run as J. Chubb Insurance drubbed the Godfathers, 10-1, in Livermore slow-pitch softball. Bonham's first inning triple, followed by Thomas' home run, shot Chubb to an insurmountable 3-0 lead. Chubb aided the winners with four base hits in four at bats. Gary Visser drove in two runs with a single.

Jim Clark and Jay Bouris each had two for the losers. Livermore Station rallied for nine runs in the fourth and fifth inning to defeat Amfac, 12-6. Rich Delgado led the attack with three base hits, along with Jim Fujut. Fujut drove in four runs with a pair of doubles.

Ernie Sherman and Al Lindberg crashed home runs for Amfac.

Nazarene Church rolled over Codrioli Ford, 15-4, as Vern Englund and Jim Burns each lashed out four hits. Burns and Mark Lehman homered for the winners. Charlie Hortje had three hits for the losers.

Dublin Pop Warner Football will hold cheerleader signups Monday, 3:45 at Dublin High School in the Quad outside the library.

Girls who will be nine, and not more than 14 years of age August 1, are eligible. There is a $2 registration fee.

May 30, 1975

In accordance with the provisions set forth in Resolution No. 75-22 (Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures), adopted by the City Council of the City of Pleasanton on January 27, 1975, zoning and conditional use application Z-75-83, UP-75-13, an application to construct and operate an automobile body repair shop, has been determined to require a negative declaration.

The project consists of the construction of a one-story masonry building containing two offices of 400 square feet each and a commercial shop area of 4,380 square feet at 4262 Stanley Boulevard. The use of the building would be the operation of an automobile body repair shop. Ambient noise levels in the immediate vicinity can be expected to rise with the construction and operation of this project. However, the use would be inside the masonry building, and the noise problem. The use would be located in a commercial service area and noise would not be greater than that expected in this zone. It is the finding of the Director of Housing and Community Development that this project would not create, to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed.

For more information on this case, contact the Department of Housing and Community Development, 200 Bernall Avenue, Pleasanton, California 94566, telephone 846-3202.

Unless any written appeals of this case are received by this department within ten (10) days of the above date of publication of this notice in the Pleasanton Times, whichever is later, this decision will become effective.

May 30, 1975

In accordance with the provisions set forth in Resolution No. 75-22 (Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures), adopted by the City Council of the City of Pleasanton on January 27, 1975, rezoning application Z-75-8, an amendment to permit carpet and floor covering sales as a permitted use in C-S, C-C, and C-R Districts, has been determined to require a negative declaration.

The project consists of amending Section 2-7.08a of Chapter 2, Title II of the Pleasanton Zoning Ordinance to include carpet and floor covering sales as a permitted use in C-S (Commercial Service), C-C (Central Commercial), and C-R (Regional Commercial) Districts. Carpet and floor covering shops are a logical extension of furniture stores which are permitted in these zones. The proposed rezoning involves a 3.06 acre parcel of land located at 3482 Stanley Boulevard and known as Annexation No. 69. The rezoning would change the land use designation from A (Agriculture) as defined in the zoning ordinance of Alameda County District to C-S (Commercial Service) as defined in the zoning ordinance of the City of Pleasanton District.

Valley church news reported

Catholic Daughters' theme

Mrs. Joseph F. Silva and Mrs. Robert J. Whitney display the banner which carries out the theme of the statewide conference of the Catholic Daughters of America.

Valley women attending Catholic Daughters meet

Mrs. Joseph F. Silva, Regent-Elect of Court St. Monica No. 1117 and Mrs. Robert J. Whitney, Regent of Court St. Raymond No. 2057, will represent their respective Courts at the statewide conference of the Catholic Daughters of America being held at the Disneyland Hotel, May 28 to June 1.

The Catholic Daughters of America is a fraternal order of Catholic women solely dedicated to charity. Pleasanton's Ct. St. Monica and Dublin's Ct. St. Raymond cooperate with each other in extending charity throughout the Valley. Most notably, they maintain a free clothing distribution room at Komandorski Village, which this year alone has given away over 7,000 pounds of clothing.

The State Conference gives over 500 delegates from throughout the State a chance to come together to discuss statewide, as well as national charities. The Catholic Daughters work in close cooperation with the United States Navy, through "Operation Handclasp," in dispensing clothing and medical supplies overseas. All through the year they are making bandages, hospital gowns, packaging clothing, soap, medical and school supplies, which are then taken to the naval supply depots for shipment overseas.

Each Court representative is asked to bring a banner carrying out the theme of the Conference, which this year is, "Renewal and Reconciliation."

Ct. St. Raymond combined the theme with the Bicentennial. Their banner signified the dove of peace of the Holy Spirit. The stars surrounding the dove signify the gifts of the Holy Spirit which include fortitude, wisdom, counsel, piety, understanding, knowledge and fear of the Lord. It is hoped through these gifts the country will be blessed with a renewal of spirit and a reconciliation of our differences.

Honda Civic CVCC 5-Speed Hatchback

MPG

The 1975 Honda Civic CVCC. You can take it to the gas station or the supermarket and not be disappointed. In EPA lab tests for highway driving, the 5-speed Civic got 42 miles per gallon. The best mileage performance for any car sold in the U.S. Yet, we didn't sacrifice roominess for economy. The Civic seats four adults. It also holds a lot of groceries, or luggage, or sporting gear, or you-name-it. (And that's with the rear seat up. Fold it down and there's even more carrying space.)

The secret behind this kind of performance is in the way the Civic was designed. We gave it a shorter profile so its compact size would be ideal for today's life-styles. And finally, we gave it an engine that doesn't need a catalytic converter, that runs on regular, low-lead or no-lead gas: The Honda CVCC Advanced Stratified Charge Engine. All in all, it's one car that no matter where you go, you won't mind saying those three little words: "Fill 'er up."
